

Shanghai Pulp Week/2019

CPICC event Wednesday, March 20

Shanghai Pulp Week (short for SPW) is an annual event hosted by China Paper & Pulp Industry Chamber of Commerce (short for CPICC) and takes place in Shanghai mid-March each year. All of the meetings and activities of SPW are organized and executed according to international rules and common practices. The main tasks of the event are:

1. To provide international pulp, paper, raw materials, trade, logistic and financial companies and professionals with an open and fare communication platform;
2. To provide a full range of support to help global pulp suppliers and service providers to enter China market and Chinese paper producers to understand the global pulp markets;
3. To help establish a balanced, stable and sustainable pulp market order for the global pulp suppliers and buyers.

Based on the global and Chinese pulp market situation and hot issues, SPW will have different themes. Over the last three years, the themes were:

- 2018 — “ Rational, Balanced Development and Sharing a Healthy Pulp and Paper Industry Supply Chain”
- 2017 — “2017 Reshuffle in China pulp market”
- 2016 — “China paper industry’ s 13th Five-year Plan under growth pattern reform”
- 2015 — “Gain a deeper understanding of the Chinese pulp and paper marker”

China Paper & Pulp Industry Chamber of Commerce (short for CPICC) is a leading Chinese paper industry association and is directly administrated by the All-China Federation of Industry and Commerce (ACFIC).

CPICC consists of the key enterprises in various sectors of Chinese paper industry and the output and market size of those enterprises for more than 70%. CPICC with the world's major pulp and paper chemical enterprises have a long - term cooperation and also established long-term relationships with paper industry associations in Europe, US, Canada, Japan, Finland and India. It is the main industry organization representing Chinese paper industry and the related sectors.
